

NEW DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

Our representatives wear this badge.

The publishers of the old reliable FARM JOURNAL of Philadelphia, are preparing to publish the Illustrated DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY, giving the name, post-office, rural route, and telephone connection of every farmer, business man, and householder in the county, all arranged alphabetically, and a classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY, including all business houses in the county, arranged under the proper headings.

With the Directory is given a complete ROAD MAP of the county, with every road NUMBERED to show the exact location of each farm, as given in the Directory.

This Directory will contain many interesting PICTURES of well-known farmers and business men of the county, fine farms, thoroughbred stock, churches and public institutions, schools and pupils, etc.

The names and necessary information are being secured by PERSONAL CANVASS of all houses and business places, and of the 3752 farms in the county. This Directory and Road Map are so useful and interesting that from our experience in other counties we can guarantee that the Directory will go into at least TWO THOUSAND HOMES OF ADAMS COUNTY, where it will be constantly used by farmers and business men for the next five years.

The Farm Journal Directories are an immense improvement over directories, containing what most publications do not give. Beside all the usual information, they give the names, addresses, telephone connection, and other important information about FARMERS, secured by PERSONAL CANVASS from each farmer himself. This canvass of country districts is so costly that most directory publishers cannot afford to make it, and ordinary lists of farmers published are in nearly all cases merely copied from official lists.

The classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY includes every business house in the county, whether in city or country. In other directories the names of houses in cities and large towns only are given.

These features with the ROAD Map, makes the Farm Journal Directory an indispensable hand-book for every live farmer and business man in the county.

If you are not sure that correct information about your farm or business has been given to one of our canvassers, please send it direct to our main office.

years since the last was ever made! Two generations and never a smell of it! Why, in those days it was served in every restaurant with crab."

When he could eat no more, the old man sighed, wiped his hands on his naked legs, and gazed out over the sea. With the content of a full stomach, he waxed reminiscent.

"To think of it! I've seen this beach alive with men, women and children on a pleasant Sunday. And there weren't any bears to eat them up, either. And right up there on the cliff was a big restaurant where you could get anything you wanted to eat. Four million people lived in San Francisco then. And now, in the whole city and county there aren't forty all told. And out there on the sea were ships and ships always to be seen, going in for the Golden Gate or coming out. And airships in the air—dirigibles and flying machines. They could travel two hundred miles an hour. Mail contracts with the New York and San Francisco Limited demanded that for the minimum. There was a chap, a Frenchman, I forget his name, who succeeded in making three hundred; but the thing was too risky for conservative persons. But he was on the right clue, and he would have managed it if it hadn't been for the great plague. When I was a boy there were men who remembered the coming of the first aeroplanes, and now I have lived to see the best of them, and that sixty years ago."

"But there weren't many crabs in those days," the old man wandered on. "They were fished out, and they were great delicacies. The open season was only a month long, too. And now crabs are accessible the whole year around. Think of it—catching all the crabs you want any time you want, in the surf of the Cliff house beach!"

A sudden commotion among the goats brought the boys to their feet. The dogs about the fire rushed to join their snarling fellow who guarded the goats, while the goats themselves stampeded in the direction of their human protectors. A half dozen forms, lean and gray, glided about on the sand hillocks or faced the bristling dogs. Edwin arched an arrow that fell short. But Hare-Lip, with a sling, such as David carried into battle against Goliath, hurled a stone through the air that whistled from the speed of its flight. It fell squarely among the wolves and caused them to sink away toward the dark depths of the eucalyptus forest.

The boys laughed and lay down again in the sand, while Granser sighed ponderously. He had eaten too much, and with hands clasped on his paunch, the fingers interlaced, he resumed his manderings.

"The fleeting systems lapse like foam," he mumbled what was evidently a quotation. "That's it—foam, and fleeting. All man's toil upon the planet was just so much foam. He domesticated the serviceable animals, destroyed the hostile ones, and cleared the land of its wild vegetation. And then he passed, the flood of primordial whole face and body turned scarlet in an hour's time. Don't I know? Didn't I see enough of it? And I am telling you it was scarlet because—well, because it was scarlet. There is no other word for it."

"Red is good enough for me," Hare-Lip muttered obstinately. "My dad calls red red, and he ought to know. He says everybody died of the Red Death."

"Your dad is a common fellow, descended from a common fellow," Granser retorted heatedly. "Don't I know the beginnings of the Chateaus? Your grandfere was a chauffeur, a servant, and without education. He worked for other persons. But your grandmother was of good stock, only the children did not take after her. Don't I remember when I first met them, catching fish at Lake Temescal?"

"What is education?" Edwin asked.

"Calling red scarlet," Hare-Lip sneered, then returned to the attack on Granser. "My dad told me, and he got it from his dad afore he croaked, that your wife was a Santa Rosan, and that she was sure no account. He said she was a hash-slinger, or before the Red Death, though I don't know what a hash-slinger is. You can tell me, Edwin."

But Edwin shook his head in token of ignorance.

"It is true, she was a waitress," Granser acknowledged. "But she was a good woman, and your mother was her daughter. Women were very scarce in the days after the Plague. She was the only wife I could find, even if she was a hash-slinger, as your father calls it. But it is not nice to talk about our progenitors that way."

"Dad says that the wife of the first chauffeur was a lady—"

"That's a lady?" Hoo-Hoo demanded.

"A lady's a chauffeur squaw," was the quick reply of Hare-Lip.

"The first chauffeur was Bill, a common fellow, as I said before," the old man expounded; "but his wife was a lady, a great lady. Before the Scarlet Death she was the wife of Van Warden. He was president of the board of industrial magnates, and was one of the dozen men who ruled America. He was worth one billion, eight hundred millions of dollars—coins like you have there in your pouch, Edwin. And then came the Scarlet Death, and his wife became the wife of Bill, the first chauffeur. He used to beat her, too. I have seen it myself."

Hoo-Hoo, lying on his stomach and idly digging his toes in the sand, cried out and investigated, first, his toenail, and, next, the small hole he had dug. The other two boys joined him, excavating the sand rapidly with their hands till there lay three skeletons exposed. Two were adults, the third being that of a part-grown child.

The old man nudged along on the ground and peered at the find.

"Plague victims," he announced. "That's the way they died every where in the last days. This must have been a family, running away from the contagion and perishing here on the Cliff house beach. They—what are you doing, Edwin?"

This question was asked in sudden dismay, as Edwin, using the back of his hunting knife, began to knock out the teeth from the jaws of one of the skulls.

"Going to string 'em," was the response.

The three boys were now hard at it; and quite a knocking and hammering arose, in which Granser babbled on unnoticed.

"You are true savages. Already has begun the custom of wearing human teeth. In another generation you will be performing your noses and ears and wearing ornaments of bone and shell. I know. The human race is doomed to sink back—farther and farther into the primitive night ere again it begins its bloody climb upward to civilization. When we increase and feel the lack of room, we shall proceed to kill one another. And then I suppose, you will wear human scalp locks at your waist, as well—as you, Edwin, who are the gentlest of my grandsons, have already begun with that vile pigtail. Throw it away, Edwin, boy; throw it away."

"What a gabble the old geezer makes!" Hare-Lip remarked, when the teeth all extracted, they began an attempt at equal division.

They were very quick and abrupt in their actions, and their speech, in moments of hot discussion over the allotment of the carver teeth, was truly a gabble. They spoke in monosyllables and short jerky sentences that were more a babble than a language. The pigtail, through it ran bits of amputated cornucopia, and several of the boys, when they saw the old man, began to laugh. "That's the way to do it," said Hare-Lip, "and you don't know it because you come from the Chauffeur tribe. They never did know nothing, none of them. Scarlet is red—I know that."

"Red is red, ain't it?" Hare-Lip grumbled. "Then what's the good of gettin' cocky and calling it scarlet?"

"Red is not the right word," was the reply. "The plague was scarlet. The may bring sickness, doctors' bills and loss of work; you know that serious sickness usually starts with a cold, and a cold only exists where weakness exists. Remember that.

THAT COLD YOU HAVE

Overcome the weakness and nature cures the cold—that is the law of reason. Carefully avoid drugged pills, syrups or stimulants; they are only props and braces and whips.

It is the pure medicinal nourishment in Scott's Emulsion that quickly enriches the blood, strengthens the lungs and helps heal the air passages.

being thus called upon. He cleared his throat and began:

"Twenty or thirty years ago my story was in great demand. But in these days nobody seems interested—"

"There you go!" Hare-Lip cried hotly. "Cut out the funny stuff and talk sensible. What's interested? You talk like a baby that don't know how."

"Let him alone," Edwin urged, "or he'll get mad and won't talk at all. Skip the funny places. We'll catch on to some of what he tells us."

"Let her go, Granser," Hoo-Hoo encouraged; for the old man was already mandering about the disrespect for elders and the reversion to cruelty of all humans that fell from high culture to primitive conditions.

KICKED STEEL JAIL OPEN

Palisades Park Prisoner Didn't Stay Asleep, Much to the Surprise of the Warders.

When the warders of the steel cages at Palisades Park, N. J., which are the lockups for wrongdoers in that section, went to open them the other morning the door of one was found to have been kicked open. The prisoner it had contained had disappeared.

The missing man is John Rudolph, who is regarded as a desperate character. During the last two weeks several homes in the vicinity of Leonia have been entered by a man supposed to be Rudolph, who represented himself as an inspector for the public service corporation and called to look over the bills of gas and electric light.

After being placed in the steel cage Rudolph was visited by County Detective Blauvelt of Hackensack, representing Sheriff Heath. When last seen Rudolph was asleep in his cage. Evidently he awakened.—New York World.

Hunter Rescues Deer.

G. H. Yeatter, railroad fireman of Lewiston, acted as a good samaritan in rescuing a deer from a pack of hounds, bathed its wounds and gave it drink.

Hunting in Granville Gap, Yeatter found a fine buck at bay against an embankment, fighting a bloody battle with a pack of hounds. After killing three and wounding a fourth, the balance took their heels, leaving their prey exhausted, blood streaming from wounds in its flanks.

Yeatter led and dragged the deer to the creek near by, washed its wounds, and induced it to drink. The buck cast a look of gratitude upon its noble rescuer and trotted into the forest. Further on Yeatter found it grazing with a doe and two fawns, and it is believed the little family were attacked by dogs and the buck, as the natural protector, gave battle with near fatal results.—Philadelphia Record.

Australian Sugar Production.

Sugar is grown quite extensively in Australia, particularly in Queensland. Queensland statistics of the production of sugar cane are not available for dates prior to the season 1897-8. In that season the total for the commonwealth was 1,073,883 tons, against 2,000,758 tons for the record season 1910-11. The average yield per acre of productive cane is much higher in New South Wales than in Queensland, the average during the late decade being 22.83 tons for the former and 15.90 for the latter state. The sugar cane production of the commonwealth during the past five seasons has averaged about seven cents a bushel of population. In Queensland the production of sugar cane has been about 150 tons in 1912 to the 1913-14 season.

New Heating System.

A new and improved system of heating has been devised by a French engineer, and is being tested in the top of a mountain in the Alps. The system is based on the principle of convection, and is said to be more efficient than any other system now in use. It is being tested in the top of a mountain in the Alps, and is said to be more efficient than any other system now in use.

Distances Near Zero.

Once again the makers of maps are busy. Most Englishmen had a vague idea that the Egyptian frontier ends with the Suez canal. That is not the case. From the map you will perceive that the British occupation extends across the very arid Sinai peninsula; the desert that cost the Children of Israel 40 years to cross!—London Chronicle.

Quarantine Permit

While the general quarantine for the feet and mouth disease remains on eight townships of the county, Berwick, Conowingo, Germantown, Hamilton, Mt. Pleasant, Oxford, Reading and Union, the following rules for the guidance of agents in issuing permits have been revised and are in effect from Jan. 4, 1915.

Permits may be issued for the removal of cattle, sheep or swine into or within the quarantined area.

First: When the animals to be removed are for immediate slaughter and the owner makes written statement that all cattle, sheep and swine on the premises are free from foot and mouth disease and obligates himself to see that immediate slaughter takes place.

Second: When the animals to be moved are for purposes other than immediate slaughter and a certificate from a reliable and competent veterinarian is presented showing that all cattle, sheep and swine on the premises have been examined within twenty-four hours and are free from foot and mouth disease. The expense of such examination must be borne by the owner of the stock.

Permits may be issued for the removal of cattle, sheep or swine from a point within to a point outside of the quarantined area in Pennsylvania.

First: When the animals to be moved are for immediate slaughter and the owner files an affidavit that no cattle, sheep or swine have been received since October 1st, 1914, and that all such animals on the premises are free from foot and mouth disease and obligates himself to see that immediate slaughter takes place.

Second: When the animals to be moved are for purposes other than immediate slaughter an examination of all cattle, sheep and swine on the premises has been made within twenty-four hours by an agent of the Board, and all are found free from foot and mouth disease.

Public sales of cattle, sheep or swine may be held within the quarantined area upon permit from the State Veterinarian. To procure such a permit the owner of the livestock must make written application to the Harrisburg office at least one week in advance of the date of the sale. The application must state the name and post office address of the owner, the location of the premises, name of township in which located, the number and kind of animals on the premises, and state the distance the nearest infected farm is located, giving the name of the owner of the infected farm. In case any cattle, sheep or swine have been received since October 1, 1914, the application must indicate from whom and where purchased.

In case permission is given for holding sale, all cattle, sheep and swine on the premises must be carefully examined by an agent of the Board or by a reliable and competent veterinarian within thirty-six hours prior to time of starting sale, and if no evidence of foot and mouth disease is observed the sale may proceed.

A representative of the Board must be present during the sale to issue permits authorizing the removal of the cattle, sheep or swine to the premises of the purchasers.

Permits may be issued for the removal of hay, straw or fodder into or within the quarantined area.

First: When the owner presents a written statement that no cattle, sheep or swine have been received on the premises since October 1, 1914, and that all animals on the premises are free from foot and mouth disease.

Second: When cattle, sheep or swine have been received since October 1, 1914, the owner will file affidavit stating number and kind of animals received since October 1st, where procured, and further that Aphthous Fever does not exist on the premises.

Permits may be issued for the removal of hay, straw or fodder, from a point inside of the quarantined area to a point outside of said area.

First: When a certificate is presented from a reliable and competent veterinarian certifying that all cattle, sheep and swine on the premises have been examined within forty-eight hours and found to be free from foot and mouth disease.

Second: In instances where the hay, straw or fodder is stored upon premises where there have been no cattle, sheep or swine since October 1, 1914, and an affidavit to that effect is filed.

Permits may be issued for the removal of hides from within to a point outside of the quarantined area when the hides are dipped under official supervision. For other restrictions in reference to handling hides see Sec. 7 of the Order of General Quarantine, adopted December 30th, Form 157.

In issuing permits for the removal of animals, hay, straw, fodder and hides, due consideration should be given to the extent of infection in the neighborhood. The advisability of issuing a given permit is left to the judgment of the respective agents in charge.

Work of County Dealer.

George A. Raffensperger, Sealer of Weights and Measures at the beginning of the year made the report for the nine months his office has been in existence. The hundreds of scales and measures found incorrect and condemned show that both those selling and those buying have been doing so at a loss. The work of the nine months is shown by the following table:

	Correct and Sealed	Incorrect and Condemned	Adjusted
Hopper scales	2	4
Wagon scales	35	23	11
Other platform scales	147	41	3
Counter scales	116	50	5
Spring balances	65	59
Beam scales	22	11	3
Computing scales	21	27	19
Dry measures	445	426
Liquid measures	235	34
Milk jars	40
Oil pails	59	3	13
Baskets	59
Small fruit baskets	125
Bones	1412	275
Yard sticks	101	2
Counter tacks	13
Avoirdupois weights	260	195	73

The work of the sealer will be increased by the new commodity law which goes into effect on Jan. 24, 1915. The net weight of all canned goods, such as peas, beans, tomatoes and corn, shall be stamped on the outside of the container. Things like coffee and sugar sold from bulk, or weighed or measured in the presence of the customer need not be marked with the quantity of the contents; but where the dealer, for the purpose of facilitating business puts up packages of rice, coffee, sugar, etc., and places them on the shelf already wrapped and packed, it will be necessary for him to mark the quantity of the contents on that class of goods, as they would then be regarded as package goods.

Hotel keepers will be required to display on each bottle a statement showing the contents. All liquid commodities shall be sold by weight or liquid measure. All dry commodities by weight, dry measure, or numerical count.

Dr. Franklin Menges Endorsed

The York Co. Agricultural Society unanimously adopted on Monday a resolution endorsing Dr. Franklin Menges for position of Secretary of Agriculture. Dr. Menges is a graduate of Gettysburg College in class of 1886 and was given the Ph.D. degree by the college in 1888. The resolution adopted was as follows:

To the Hon. M. G. Brumbaugh, Governor-elect of Pennsylvania:

His Excellency:

We, the life members of the York County Agricultural Society, in the annual meeting assembled, do most heartily endorse the candidacy of Dr. Franklin Menges, of York county, and a member of this society, for the honorable and important position of secretary of agriculture of this commonwealth. In the capacity as farm adviser, for ten years, Dr. Menges has come in contact with the farmers of every section of the State; he is the soil crop specialist to the State Board of Agriculture and his bulletin of the soils of Pennsylvania, just from the press, contains an exhaustive account of the soils of every township in the State. His views and sympathies are in accord with the practical farmers of the State. His home life is ideal, his public career is clean, and his integrity cannot be questioned.

Trusting to your good judgment, we believe Dr. Menges' candidacy will appeal to you and we hope you will give it your careful consideration.

Sincerely,

York County Agricultural Society.

OLD CURSE AT WORK STILL

Death of English Officer in France Recalls Malediction Pronounced Centuries Ago.

The death by a German bullet of Hon. Francis Geoffrey Pearson, Lord Cowdray's third son has recalled in England the violent end of other heirs to Cowdray, the historic mansion near Midhurst, and of the curse that was pronounced in 1538, when Sir Arthur Browne, father of the first Lord Montagu, received Battle Abbey as a gift from Henry III.

Sir Arthur destroyed the great church at Battle and the cloisters, and converted the abbot's lodging into a dwelling house. While he was holding a feast in the great hall one of the dispossessed monks entered and solemnly cursed the family, declaring that the Montagu line should "perish by fire and water." It was not till 1793, two centuries later, that the curse was fulfilled. In that year Cowdray house was destroyed by fire, and a week later the last Viscount Montagu was drowned in the Rhine.

After the death of the last Lord Montagu the Cowdray property came into the possession of the viscount's sister, Mrs. Stephen Poyntz, who soon after receiving the estate lost her two sons by drowning at Bagnor. On the death of Mrs. Poyntz the property was divided between her three daughters, but was sold to the earl of Edgmont in 1843. In 1909 it came into the hands of Sir Weeraman Pearson, and when Sir Weeraman, on being made a peer in 1910, chose the title of Lord Cowdray, an old Sussex woman spoke of the curse, which, says a London letter, is still remembered among the Midhurst people.

PLAN LONG BRIDGE OVER SEA

British Engineers Contemplate Project Successfully Carried Through in America.

The project of connecting the island of Ceylon with the mainland of India by a railroad bridge has been revived again, though, like all such projects, it must wait till after the end of the war. The distance is 22 miles, numerous rocky islets furnish natural halting places, and the intervening water is said to be shallow enough to make pier-building easy for modern engineers.

Even if this bridge is built, it will not be the longest structure of the sort in the world. The Florida East Coast railway goes out to sea 46 miles, from the tip of the Florida peninsula to Key West. At one point, it crosses nine miles of open water, and passengers on its trains are out of sight of land. The whole, remarkable structure is of re-enforced concrete, calculated to last for ages.

The engineers of British India will have a hard job to beat the precedent set by the American builders whom Henry M. Flagler set at work. It will be interest to see them try.

An Important Decision.

An important decision affecting the banking law was made by the appellate division of the supreme court in Wulff vs. Roseville Trust company, in which the court vacates an attachment in this state against the property of a financial institution in New Jersey which has been closed by the commissioner of banking and insurance. The court held that New Jersey law relating to the closing of a bank by the commissioner is similar to the provisions of the New York banking law and that the commissioner "is deemed to have become vested with the title to the assets of said institution as the trustee of an express trust." The court says that "in such a case no creditor is permitted to obtain a preference over others or to obtain a lien upon the property of the banking institution after the commissioner has taken charge thereof."

Sneezing as a Diagnosis.

A sneeze is responsible for the discovery by City Clerk Newton that he had three broken ribs and a dislocated shoulder, says a Hanford (Cal.) dispatch to the Los Angeles Times. Several days ago Newton and a number of friends were returning from an automobile ride when the machine turned over. He was slightly injured, but thought nothing of it.

Later he sneezed vigorously and the pain increased; he sneezed again and then hastened to see a doctor. The physician, after an examination, informed him that he had three broken ribs and a dislocated shoulder. Since then Newton has been unable to work. His wife is now recovering when he will be able to get on his feet.

"You're Making the Enemy"

A British soldier, who had been in the front line for some time, was asked by a German soldier who was captured by him, "What are you doing?" The British soldier replied, "I'm making the enemy."

"Why do you say that?" the German soldier asked. "Because I'm making the enemy," the British soldier replied.

"I can't understand you," the German soldier said. "I'm making the enemy," the British soldier replied. "I'm making the enemy," the German soldier said. "I'm making the enemy," the British soldier replied.

TRICKS OF SOME TRAVELERS

Depredations of Thoughtless Tourists Who Desire Souvenirs Are Innumerable.

We often hear complaints from tourists about inattention and lack of courtesy on the part of those whose duty it is to cater to the traveling public. But there is another side to the story; for instance, the custodians of places of historic or scenic interest frequently visited by travelers are obliged to maintain constant watch against the vandalism of souvenir hunters, Leslie's states.

What satisfaction can be found in mutilating and demolishing things of interest and value to procure a souvenir, or in appropriating from well-known hotels such property as knives, forks, pepper and salt shakers, napkins, towels and bath mats? The manager of a prominent hotel in New York even reports the disappearance of pillows from the bedrooms. The value of this stolen property yearly amounts to a very large sum. It has been the underlying cause for the appearance of such items as the following on menus: "Chicken en casserole in individual souvenir" or "souvenir cocktail" in which the appetizer is served in a container bearing the house name, and which container is given to the patron. There are numerous little souvenirs, such as silver-plated trays, teaspoons, etc., for sale by various hotels to satisfy collectors. Not all things that disappear from hotels are taken with deliberate intention. Major Bowman, manager of a famous New York hotel, has concluded that linen is not always purchased, but is taken away unconsciously as wrappers for shoes and other articles when packing, and men, he says, unconsciously tuck bar towels in their coat pockets after using them, and these are dropped at the next hotel visited. This wholesale pilfering of hotel articles has led to the formation of a linen exchange. Many of the leading managers now have stock taken of all the foreign linen in their hotels, and at regular intervals this material is sent to its rightful owners, who then return linens not belonging to them.

WEREN'T LOOKING FOR THAT

Work Allotted Fictitious "Red Cross Workers" Not at All What They Wanted.

All Paris a short time ago wanted to visit the French firing line, but the required passes were extremely difficult to obtain, and there were therefore only a few of the many who finally found their way within hearing of gun-fire. Even these seemed an abomination to the French general staff. Spectators were not wanted, and consequently every means was used to turn them back. The New York Times tells of an amusing incident in which an overzealous group had their patriotism tried cruelly and found wanting.

They had collected on a hill overlooking Soissons to watch the artillery duel that was going on across the river when a staff officer rode up and asked what they were doing there. All with one accord said they had come out to see whether they could be of any use in Red Cross work.

The staff officer at once sent them to the surgeon in command of the nearest field hospital with a message placing the whole party at his disposal. The surgeon rose to the occasion.

"It was most kind of you to come," he said; "you can be of the greatest service. Here are picks and spades. Will you kindly bury these dead horses?"

Not many of the horses were ever buried but that corner of the field of battle was successfully cleared of spectators.

Health Work in the South.

At Jacksonville, Fla., on Monday, November 30, occurs the opening session of the American Public Health association and the whole of that week will be devoted to sessions of the five sections of the association and to general sessions in which gather members of all sections.

Not only will the latest developments in the campaign against the hookworm disease, diseases among negroes and other distinctly southern problems be placed before the country, but every effort will be made to stimulate public interest in health matters, throughout the southern states, in the hope that legislative and other public action may be taken to place that section on an equal footing with the states most advanced in the work.
